

Nugget the Brave

Based Off Of A True Story!

By: Jacob Haberecht and Ian Steiger

Once Upon a time, there was a young chicken nugget named Nugget, and he lived in the Magnificent Nugget Land_(very creative). Oh, but poor little Nugget had barely any friends! For he was part Corgi, and everyone thought that was weird and disturbing! What a poor little nugget indeed...

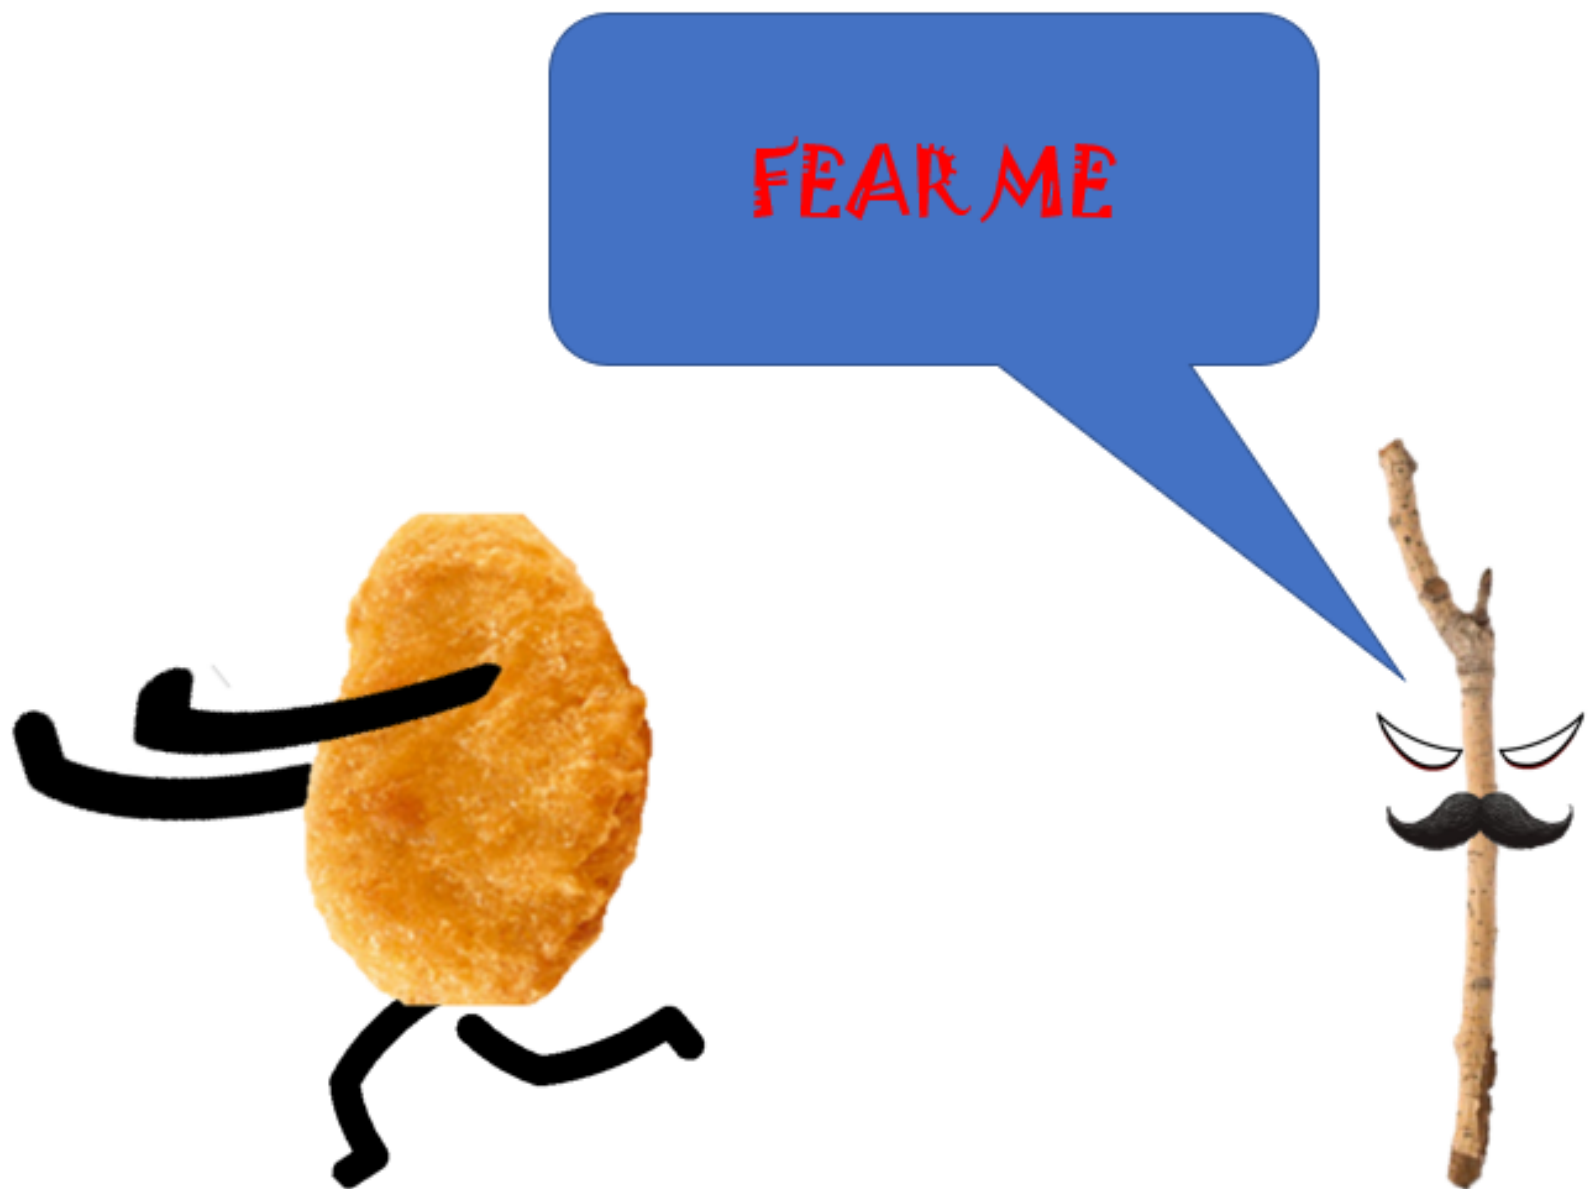

But that was changed one fateful day... Tuesday, to be exact. Nugget was awoken in his cottage by a cold, raspy voice yelling outside his door “Please! We’re just a small town! We could never get those many Nugget Coins!” Nugget Heard The Mayor Plead, “Yes you can. And if I don't have 1,000,000,000 Nugget Coins in 25 days, well, I’ll be havin’ a village size take-out order of chicken nuggets for dinner with a bottle o’ soda.”

Being the rash little nugget he is, Nugget ran outside to confront the unknown culprit, as he shouted, “You’re not getting those coins! You rotten breathed, ugly little-” Nugget froze when

Seeing the voice’s owner, for it was The fearsome emperor- The Nugget Dragon! “WHAT WAS THAT LITTLE GUY?” The Dragon then forcefully shoved Nugget into a cannon and launched him Miles away!

Nugget awoke in a forest, lying down in pain.
“Ugh, What happened?”, he said to himself.
Before he could recall what happened, Nugget was interrupted by a whip from the mustache of a stick monster! Nugget dashed away, as The Stick followed (This is a very strange...world...).

Nugget thought it was the end, when- SLASH! Out of nowhere, a robed goat appeared and cut The Stick in half! Before Nugget could catch a breath and thank the traveler, the Goat asked Nugget to come to his shrine. “Come with me, young one.”, the Goat said. He gave Nugget a sword of cheese and a pair of spring boots, as well as some food and water, as they walked to the shrine.

Before Nugget could sit down, the Goat said, “I would like you to meet my other student.” And he pointed to a duck with a chair strapped to its head. “Hi!”, said the Duck. Nugget gave a confused look as the Duck continued, “There’s something about you...something...special. Do you intend to train?” Immediately, Nugget agreed, and told the story. “That's going to be hard, Training starts tomorrow.”, said the Duck. Nugget imagined a smile instead of actually smiling because he has no mouth. How does he speak?

The Goat gives Nugget three tasks. He must find the magic sock of Apple Mountain, slay 100 disco balls, and hardest of all, cut an onion without crying. In 2 months, Nugget was a fully trained Samurai. He was ready to travel to Nugget Dragon's castle, defeat The Emperor, and save Nugget Land.

Nugget stood at the castle doors, and bursted through. “YOU AGAIN? LET’S GET IT OVER WITH.” Nugget charged at The Dragon with the cheese sword, poking and swinging, but he couldn't make a scratch! The Dragon grabbed Nugget and threw him across the room!

“HA! NOTHING CAN HURT ME EXCEPT FOR DOGS! I’M VERY ALLERGIC TO DOGS.” That gave Nugget an idea, his special Corgi DNA gave him the ability to speak to and summon Corgis! There was a moment of silence... then Corgis started bursting through the door, sweeping The Dragon away!

Nugget took a sigh of relief. When he walked out the gates, The Duck was waiting. “So... How do You plan to get back to Nugget Land?”, The Duck asked. “Don't worry, I'll call my dad.”, Nugget replied. The Duck stared in awe, as a giant, winged Corgi floated down from the sky.

When Nugget returned home, he was crowned King of The Universe for his deeds. The people who were mean to Nugget apologized for treating him not as for who he is as a person, but simply for who his parents were. Nugget became the greatest king ever. And Nugget Land went from a small town, to a huge, amazing kingdom where everyone lived a happy, peaceful life.

The End.